[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

The loss is heavy, as a safe was only partially insured.

Fortunately the barn was at a safe distance from his palatial home, which he will soon occupy, and only this distance intervening saved it from destruction. The origin of the fire is unexplained.

A BEAUTIFUL PEERESS

COUNTRESS OF MAR AND KELLIE.

Countess of Mar and Kellie, whose mother-in-law is very ill. The Dowager Countess of Mar and Kellie had been reported at one time to be abroad and at another time to be in the country. As a matter of fact the unfortunate countess is only one of several victims who have lost their mental balance as a result of a severe attack of influenza. Only a few of her intimate friends know of her condition, which is causing the gravest anxiety. In fact, the doctors hold out very little hope of her mental recovery. The dowager belongs to the very old Scotch family which has been waging legal war against another and even older branch of the family—the Earl of Mar (without the Kellie)—for many years. The Earl of Mar, who is the thirty-third of his line, has long claimed the valuable family estates. He is a poor man, while the present Earl of Mar and Kellie, the thirteenth in his line, owns and holds the estates. The present Lady Mar and Kellie, daughter-in-law of the unfortunate dowager, is a very beautiful woman, and is a great friend of the King and Queen.
